FISH PRODUCTION INCREASING

Since the ban on night fishing in Florida waters was relaxed three weeks ago nearly a million pounds of fish have been added to the nation's food basket, reports from leading commercial fishing industries along both East and West Coasts reveal.

Reports to the district coast guard headquarters indicate fishermen are abiding exceptionally well by the revised code announced April 6, which granted nearly all privileges previously reserved for this exception was night fishing in steamship lanes. Rear Admiral W. R. Munroe, commander of the Seventh naval district and commander of the gulf sea frontier, in announcing the navy's policy to make possible a maximum increase in Florida's production of seafood compatible with military security, stated definitely fishing in heavily-traveled routes, could not be permitted.

The coast guard reports show an increase between 30 and 60 per cent, depending on the locality, of fish caught since the ban was lifted and the take is being scheduled to be higher as soon as available gear has been converted for night use and more favorable weather conditions prevailed.

Commercial production of fish in the upper Indian river, Banana river, Manatee bayou area has increased more than 50 per cent, according to L. M. Carpenter of the Scobie Supply Co. In the Venice, Sarasota, Fort Myers, Naples and Punta Gorda approximately 100,000 pounds of Spanish mackerel were taken in the area between Pass-a-Grille and Deer Island—Key West City.

SMALL BEERS

There won't be enough beer made this year to quench the thirst of all those who want to drink it. No serious shortage is in prospect, but demand is running about 15 per cent ahead of last year's and production will be curtailed slightly. The beer makers are up against four main problems:

An inadequate supply of a major raw material, barley malt.
Curtailed shipments. They must cut their freight car mileage by 10 per cent and their truck deliveries by 25 per cent.
Difficulty in obtaining enough containers.

The cost of their raw materials has risen sharply, while their own prices have been put under office of price administration ceilings.

Citizens who will feel the beer situation most are those who live in places where no breweries nearby such as rural areas, and on the Pacific coast, which normally imports quite a lot of Midwestern beer, and where the local breweries are busy supplying a big demand from the armed forces.

Transportation restrictions are encouraging the beer makers to give preference to customers in nearby territory. As a result the Eastern half of the United States will be better off than the rest of the country. More than 50 per cent of the country's beer production comes from five states—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Minnesota and Illinois.—Wall Street Journal.

DEVELOP FLORIDA INDUSTRY

Almost every day we hear of some new industry in Florida, frequently a result of the discovery of some method, heretofore unknown, for processing some Florida product.

A case in illustration is the wood pulp industry for paper making which until a very few years ago was unknown in Florida and was finally brought to light by the late Dr.

Herty, research chemist. The result is that today we have a half dozen or more big pulp mills in this State making commercial paper and fiber board with slash pine. No one can predict what natural resources possessed by Florida will become important commercial assets in the near future. For instance, who would have thought that rattlesnake venom would ever become a commercial commodity. At Silver Springs near Ocala, Ross Allen, conducts what he calls a "reptile institute" where he makes a business of extracting, or "milking" the venom from poisonous snakes and selling the products to the great pharmaceutical houses of the North.

Spanish moss hung in the pine and oak trees of Florida for centuries before someone thought of it could be used for mattress stuffing and packing material. Florida tobacco is made into cigars, millions of which are sold throughout the nation. We are told that the largest cigar factory in the world is which makes the King Edward cigar at a rate of over two million daily at Jacksonville, using a great deal of Florida tobacco.

It is well known to many that cypress lumber lends itself readily to the manufacture of fine furniture, both rustic and finished. It is also superb for beautiful interior finish in homes, banks, public buildings and the like.

Florida offers much to the research expert and even to the humble citizen who doesn't pose as an expert at all, but who comes to this State endowed with curiosity and sufficient industry and good judgement to back it up. Such individuals generally find something among the unexplored possibilities which Florida offers that yield them a very satisfactory return and make a substantial contribution to the State's assets.—Winter Park Herald.

"I am Mr. Brown, the Agricultural expert for this division. Here are my credentials." "Ah, yes, Mr. Brown, Harvard man, I see. Splendid. Now, which department do you—"

"I think I would prefer the publicity angle. I have some new ideas I should like to give the farmers. Take, for example, our most delicious berries, the potato and the onion. I think we should plant the trees closer and prune the branches in the spring just at the budding season. That would give us more branches to produce more burrs. This same plan would help the peanut tree."

"But, Mr. Brown—"

"However, my chief interest is bovines or cows. It has been our practice to produce numbers of useless male cows, and this must be discouraged. Such as are produced should be slaughtered and made into sausage, and ham to relieve the pork and mutton shortage."

"We have also followed the wasteful practice of feeding our young female cows a year or more before breeding them to produce milk. I think these fillies should be trained to produce milk within six or eight weeks after hatching."

"The whole dairy business needs efficient reorganization. We must teach our dairymen to specialize. The cows in one region should give nothing but milk, those in another nothing but cream, those in a third nothing but butter, and those in a fourth section nothing but cheese. It will not be necessary to specialize in butter milk, for we can use ordinary milk and add the butter at a processing plant."

"The whole thing is wasteful. No doubt you have read about the breakage of milk bottles. This can be corrected by using larger containers with rubber cushions around the top so they will not break. It will cost, for it must be very difficult to sit on these bottles."

"Cows are nervous animals, easily disturbed by noise. I think we should discontinue or plug up the horns they use in making that moose sound, and—"

"Yes yes, Mr. Brown. That is splendid. But excuse me a moment. I need a little air."—Springfield (Mo.) Leader-Press.

SITTING IN WITH—the best all-around politician in the House. When it comes to horse trading he can outsmart the best of them and he is a good fellow to have on your side in a pinch. Outside of the Speaker himself, Eugene has received more publicity in state papers than any other member of the House.

Legislators and bureaucrats juggled figures last week with the dexterity of a Ringling Troup as Welfare Board's Hatt fought desperately to establish proof of the economical administration of his department, claiming operating costs of less than eight percent. Sheldon took his turn with the mathematical Indian Clubs to prove such costs were nearer twenty per cent. The Shands Committee settled for approximately twelve and a half percent. Taxpayers learned that it cost around one dollar to give away four dollars of state money and began to understand why the aged and blind and the orphan go without shoes while the officials charged with "looking after" them ride in shiny automobiles and dine on planked steaks.

To correct the evil, Sheldon would limit State Welfare Board costs to a maximum of five percent, the same as does the Federal government, claiming such action would mean a million dollars more for the old folks, dependent children and the blind. Shands, whose committee has been studying state boards, bureaus and commissions like a troop of Commandos, is reported just about ready to strike. Grinned House committees have been chewing over the financial cut left over the very day. He said until they have developed a nasty case of indigestion. Taxpayers, mildly interested, are watching the following smoke and wondering whether or not there really is a FIRE.

It appears that Florida legislators are just about as fed up with Federal bureaucrats and taxpayers as are people, for twice this week they slipped down the ears of high powered Washington lobbyists sent down here by Federal agencies to crack whips and hold hops for lawmakers to jump thru. An attempt in the House to cram thru a constitutional amendment that would relieve RRA operations in this state from all taxation, met stubborn resistance when the bill reached the floor, thanks to the courageous fight of Clement of Pinalia, Lewis of Gulf and a number of others. In the Senate a constitutional amendment to amend the Time Change bill by Thomas of Lake reopened an Alphabetical Simon Legree who winged his way up to "fix our clock"—and rewarded him for his kindly interest and effort by reporting the bill out favorably "over his dead body"—which was shipped back to the Senate by the Senate's outgoing plane—Lewis of Gulf demanded that the Sergeant of Arms clear the House of Federal lobbyists and Eugene's Committee concurred, shouting with gusto, "Throw them all out." And all this happened in Claude Pepper's Tallahassee. For shame, Gunther, for shame!

CINEMATIC CHATTER.....

—By MALCOLM MILLAR—
What The Movies Have To Offer During The Coming Week

There's a mighty sweet little drafted into the service of Uncle Sam coming to the Prince Theatre this Sunday and doing as big a job as for the Owl Show Saturday, and any front-line soldier. You'll want the Sunday screening. That little, to cheer Billy Lee, who winds his lady is Deanna Durbin, and she is dog away to war, and you'll cheer her along with Edmund in this picture.

That dynamic little lady, who has a large following of cinematic fans, Jane Withers, with Henry Wilcoxon and a swell supporting cast come in Prince, narrating the tale of Jane in the dual role of the adolescent movie star, and of that star's fan club, under the title of "Rammy Doughboy." It's a musical feast with a nice, smooth moving plot that will keep everyone interested throughout its screening.

On the same program come the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys in a story of war—war on crime. These gangs team up and go to work for Uncle Sam with results that will be surprising to all onlookers. Those who enjoy these kids will say it's a fine picture.

Members of the Six Shooters Club the Saturday afternoon is Don "Red" Barry and his cohorts in a blazing story of the west titled "Arizona Terrors." In this picture the double feature of intrigue and action is a "new" brand of entertainment, and with "Red" starred in the offering we are assured of the fact that there will be plenty of sian bang action throughout.

There it is children—Even though the April drive will be over when this goes to press, we still sell War bonds for our theatres—with a complimentary ticket with each—May we serve you?—See you at the movies—Mal.

On the same program is a story as new as tomorrow's headlines under the title of "War Dogs." This one stars Billy Lee and Addison Richards in a tale of dogs.

The situation grows steadily more critical today. In our name, YOU'RE and MINE, the State of Florida is about to crucify Faith Mission.

Despite the amazing record of twenty-one years of successful operation, Faith Mission, because it has not been able to meet every rule, regulation, directive and edict of the State Welfare Board and the State's whimsy to take them when the power that was Casanova appears in the form of an inspector or supervisor, has been condemned to death.

Fred C. Markers, founder of Faith Mission, still following the humble teachings of the Master, says simply: "I have done the best I can, the best I know how." It is children and can do better by them, I must accept it as God's will. Sixty-one children, taken from the homes of a truly Christian home and turned over to the regimentation and regulation of a political bureau—

"Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do."

Like Christ was crucified by an indifferent populace two thousand years ago to satisfy the greed and lust for power of a group of selfish priests and a great political

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

—by Russell Kray—

Twenty-one years ago, before anyone ever heard of Welfare Boards, Social Security, Community Chests or the New Deal, a kindly Christian couple who had given their lives to ministering to others, established a Gospel Mission in Tampa.

A tiny enterprise, in their care, it grew and grew, until it became a self-sustaining institution. The Father, in Heaven, had provided for their need. Their faith was unwavering.

That was the birth of Faith Mission. Their good work became known, and unsolicited help came to them. Their need developed. Church organizations, civic clubs, firms and individuals came bearing gifts of food, clothing, toys and supplies. The Mission grew, other children came as if directed by an invisible Source.

In all its twenty-one years, Faith Mission has been true to its name. While other orphanages have been held back by dogged on the streets, defamed, State aid or conducted drives and campaigns, Faith Mission stood firm, independent, but O.K. in the eyes of the community. With bowed heads they laid their problems in the lap of HIM who said: "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and ye shall open." On numerous occasions they faced bare cupboard and other seemingly insurmountable problems, but not one of their prayers go unanswered and not one did they lose their Faith.

Then came a miracle. A wealthy friend purchased for them a beautiful home on the Gulf at Crystal Beach and from the square surroundings of "Faith" Mission they moved to this lovely place where the children could enjoy beautiful sunshine and clean air. It was indeed a day of joy and thanksgiving.

I have personally visited Faith Mission on many occasions, have romped and played with the happy, healthy children. My wife has made dresses for its little ones; our Church, as have many others, has provided food, clothing, and supplies. Each year I enjoyed the thrill of taking Faith Mission children through the Florida Fair.

Faith Mission to me is more than a home; it is a Church of God. I was ever in the Spirit of the Master, to hover over it. I do not claim to be a religious man, but I have always felt very close to my Maker when visiting Faith Mission.

I have never been better trained, better cared for children anywhere. If half the children in the private homes of this state were as well looked after, we would not need to have our heads in shame over our ghastly record of child delinquency and juvenile neglect. Faith Mission children are and should be in good, joyful, healthy and happy condition.

Despite the millions we appropriate for welfare and social work, selfish priests and a great political

ST. PETERSBURG, May 6.—(FNS)—A waterproof Bible is being added to the emergency supplies for Army airmen. The first one was presented to Capt. Donald L. Yobe, assistant operations officer at Drew Field last week

Unclaimed Money In Bank To Go To State Under Bill

Legislators Believe Law Would Raise 4 or 5 Million Dollars

TALLAHASSEE, May 6.—(FNS)—Representatives Leo Woltzky of Charlotte and Jerry Collins of Sarasota introduced in the House this week a revenue bill that proponents contend should raise as much if not more than the proposed tax on cigarettes and yet avoid the need for this or another new tax levy. Designated House Bill 661, this measure would exonerate all unclaimed accounts now lying dormant in banks where owners of such funds are unknown. It would effect, open accounts that have been inactive for seven years or more and savings accounts on which no deposits or withdrawals have occurred for twenty years or more.

Banks would be required to list all such accounts, give public notice in a local newspaper and then certify to the State Treasurer. The bill further provides that anyone able to prove that they are the rightful owner of such an unclaimed account at any time within twenty years after such monies are turned over to the state will be refunded the amount due them by the treasurer.

A similar law placed on the statutes of the State of Pennsylvania a few years ago brought in ninety million dollars, a very small amount of which was ever reclaimed or refunded.

Proponents point out that millions of dollars unclaimed, belong to parties unknown, now lie in banks of this state and as this money cannot be taken by banks it only causes them extra bookkeeping. And as ample provision is made to protect such depositors for an additional period of twenty years, such legislation would harm no one and at the same time provide the state with much needed revenue and make the levying of any new taxes unnecessary.

Proponents estimate that the bill will produce between four and five million dollars, more than Governor McKeith stated was a need and for which he proposed a 3¢ tax on cigarettes.

War Takes 96¢ Of Each Dollar

Out of every $1.75 that is invested in a War Bond, 96¢ goes into the war, 1¢ goes into the bank, and 3¢ goes into other military equipment. The 1¢ goes for ordinary government expenditures of every dollar $1.75 cents goes toward the war effort and 1¢ goes for government "business as usual."

The same ratio applies to all other securities the government has offered investors in the Second War Loan campaign for 12 billion dollars.

It's A People's War

We are paying more in taxes than ever before... and likely will pay more. But we cannot rely on taxes to finance the war. It would not be fair to base a tax on the average single family income when many families have more than one income. We could borrow all the money from the banks, but for both economic and social reasons this is undesirable. The government would then sacrifice its greatest Cam against inflation. This is a People's War and the people should finance it. The people WANT to finance it. Sale of War Bonds has met with a resounding success. They give their lives... You lend your money.

Sugar Company To End Harvest

Immediately following the close of the present sugar cane harvest season, plant call for workmen of the U. S. Sugar corporation to get busy on the annual overhaul and repair work at the mill and on all farm equipment. There is no prediction today as to the actual closing of the mill but the harvest is entering the final stages. A sudden change in weather conditions might cause a change in plans.

"At the completion of the harvest season sometime during the month of May," said Jay W. Moran, vice president and general manager, "we will have registered the longest grinding season in the history of sugar making here in the Everglades. Therefore, the work of overhauling and repairing all machinery at the mill and all farm equipment and machinery will begin at once. There will be no cessation of work and no temporary layoffs as in previous years at the close of crop. Those who are now employed by the corporation will be given the opportunity to continue steadily through the summer."

"It is the intention of the corporation to continue to grind cane as long as weather conditions will permit and the sugar yield in the cane makes it feasible to continue the harvest," said Mr. Moran. By the 15th this section is usually experiencing some heavy rains. Should rains occur heavy enough to delay field operations as much as a week it would bring the crop to an end, it was pointed out.

Working under the same adverse circumstances common to all industries under present world conditions, the corporation has managed to put forth every effort to harvest every possible pound of sugar to aid the nation through the war crisis.

Plans for the harvest festival, though somewhat changed in appearance this year, will carry the usual spirit throughout the Everglades plantations. It is expected that definite announcement will be made in a few days concerning the festival date and place.
